Cabinet meets at Pinestone

Relaxing in a comfortable armchair at the PineStone Inn, Premier David Peterson was able to take some time out from his caucus meetings to talk about the simpler things in life, life Japanese tea. One of the cabinet ministers was so taken by the Haliburton Highlands that other meetings are being planned at the PineStone.

County urged to plan strategy for economy

Haliburton County council has endorsed a discussion paper by the area LEAD Corporation which says the county should have an overall economic development strategy prepared.

The discussion paper, entitled 'An Overview to an Economic Development Strategic Plan', will be submitted to federal government authorities who will rule on which LEAD proposals to fund.

Currently the Haliburton LEAD Corporation board has received 11 proposals for infrastructure projects, manager Andy Campbell told council last Wednesday. Of these, two relatively small projects - an industrial complex in Dysart and a CHACE Place/retail facility in Minden - have been endorsed by the board. The possibility of a lending corporation is also under consideration, Campbell said.

The overview document, which area reeves had received only one day before last Wednesday's meeting and which many of them said they had not read, cites eight economic goals of an economic development strategy for Haliburton County:

- To increase the economic potential and employment opportunities for citizens by creating added income and additional jobs;
- To diversify the economic base of the County's industry;
- To extend the length and impact of the summer and winter tourist seasons;
- To identify and locate attractions and services that support the tourism development of the County;
- To identify the tourism development opportunities which could strengthen and diversify the economic base of the various townships;
- To identify manufacturing businesses whose products are associated with the tourism business or the leisure time market;

• To create a spirit of collaboration and coordination among the ten townships to establish a strong, integrated economic community;

• To identify areas of government assistance.

The strategy would also pay heed to cultural goals of increasing recreational facilities and opportunities, and of developing greater awareness of local history and heritage, as well as environmental goals of preserving sensitive areas and the natural attractions of the county.

Three previous reports have focussed on the county's economy, the discussion paper notes. A tourism development strategy for Peterborough and Haliburton was commissioned by the provincial ministry of tourism and recreation and completed in September, 1981.

Americans to learn of area's tourism appeal

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

In order to promote Haliburton's potential growth as a major tourist centre, a group of forty Americans prominent in the travel industry will visit the area in October.

The "familiarization" tour, organized by the Central Ontario Travel Association, will explore all this area has to offer on the first day and then go on to visit other counties from the Bay of Quinte to Hastings.

"We wanted to take people out of upper New York State and show them they could travel beyond Toronto and have a new world at their doorstep," says Anne Axler, who helped plan the tour when she was working at COTA and is now the public relations manager at the Domain of Killien.

Working with the Canadian Consulate in New York and the Ontario Ministry of Tourism and Recreation, Axler invited those people who can influence travelling trends such as motor coach tour owners, the American Automobile Association, group tour planners and travel agents. In turn, these people can go back to their peers with, it is hoped, a good impression of Haliburton.

"This industry is multi-faceted and we want to bring the roots of the travel agencies to the potential buyers," says Axler. She has worked in many different branches of tourism and travel from wholesale to retail and is aware of the needs and concerns of each group.

First stop on their tour of the Highlands is the PineStone Inn, where the group will take a look at the facilities on a brief walk about. Then it's on to the Domain of Killien, where the group will be greeted with a wine and cheese get together and a mini art show sponsored by the Guild of Fine Arts and the Agnes Jamieson Gallery.

Local artisans' work will be displayed in the Domain's compound because when "you sell a region you have to sell the people, the cuisine and the culture," says Axler. "It's their first night in

Mediation begins at mill

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

Union representatives of Local 2100 of the International Woodworkers of America and negotiators for Martin Lumber will meet in Peterborough on Friday to try to iron out their differences with the help of a provincial mediator.

Union members last week voted 86 percent in favour of strike action if no settlement is reached.

The main hitch in the contract negotiations is not wages since the lumber company is offering a 3.5 per cent increase and the union is asking for five per cent.

"The one and a half per cent difference equals only 10 cents on the base rate of $7.05 and based on our 44 hour work week, this is $228 per year. No one would strike for such a small amount," the union said in a press release issued over the weekend. "At issue are the needs of the employees in the areas of working conditions, improved communications, respect for the bargaining process, pension plan, dental plan, benefits which exist in other sectors of the corporation, and wages."

As reported in last week's Echo, the workers have been without a contract since May and though they have been negotiating for a new one since then, the two sides haven't been able to reach an agreement.

"It is intended that the seriousness of our commitment will bring the company back to the table for further talks on a level which includes discussion. We hope to settle this contract without a strike," the union says.

"Increased support from our new I.W.A. representative, Ron Green, has encouraged our members to insist on improvements which are long overdue and very necessary.

There are basic concerns for security, working environment, and attitudes towards the most important natural resource at Martin Lumber.

"In all areas our requests would only bring our standards closer but not beyond those in other companies in the corporation, and the industry in general. These requests are by no means greedy," the union says.

The release goes on to say that what the company has offered only applies to a few men or will be rarely used.

"The workers at Martin Lumber in Harcourt are among the top production groups in the corporation but remain the second lowest paid, with fewer statutory holidays, lower benefit packages, contributing to the lowest morale," the union says.

"We fully realize the economic effects on our members' families and on many others in this community. We do also feel justified in our demands for improved conditions and benefits."

Ribbon is cut to open new Chamber office

Sunshine and the skirl of Earl Cooper's pipes complimented the sense of optimism that prevailed last Wednesday as the new Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce building on Highway 35 in Minden was officially opened.

Chamber president Ken Langdon was joined by county warden Dalton MacDonald for the ribbon cutting ceremony at the entrance to the attractive wooden building, which was substantially funded from county coffers.

Also on hand for the official opening were county councillors, members of the Chamber board of directors, and other Chamber supporters.

In a brief speech following the ribbon cutting, the Chamber president thanked county council for the "financial and moral support" they provided to the project.

"Confidence built" the new office, Langdon said, "confidence that members will get behind the Chamber board, and confidence that Haliburton County has something unique to offer."

"We must pull together" to increase business activities "and provide jobs for the young people of the county," he said.

Warden Dalton MacDonald expressed the hope that the new facility would assist the Chamber in its goal of attracting more people to Haliburton County.

The decision to build the new office was made last fall, with county council approval, when it became obvious that the building which formerly stood on the site was too run down to be worth repairing.

Although the new building has been in use for several months, the official opening was delayed until landscaping work was completed and the peak tourist season ended.

Police News

Accidents

On Saturday, September 21 at 2:10 p.m. a two vehicle accident occurred on Hwy. 121, one km west of the Ingoldsby turn.

The driver of a 1986 pickup truck, Roberta McDonald, age 28, of Scarborough, was turning onto the highway from a private drive intending to proceed west. As her vehicle crossed the eastbound lane, it was struck on the left rear corner by an eastbound 1984 Ford. Driver of the car was Ronald Christopher, age 21, of Oshawa. His car sustained $1,500 damage and the truck $3,000 damage. McDonald and a passenger, Leonard Ross, age 30, of Scarborough, received minor injuries. She was charged with failing to yield the right-of-way from a driveway.

Also on Saturday, a 16 year old RR 1 Minden youth received minor injuries on Duck Lake Road when his trail bike left the roadway and struck a rock. It is believed he was attempting to elude PC Ken Wesley who was on patrol in the area. The motorcycle was unlicensed. The teenager has been charged with careless driving and will likely face other charges regarding licensing and insuring the vehicle.

With schools back in full swing throughout the county, police want to remind drivers of the rules that must be followed when you approach a bus that is loading or unloading youngsters.

Minden detachment community services officer Gary Chapman has provided the following explanation of school bus passing laws:

When you're driving on a road and you see a school bus you should be alert and be prepared to stop if necessary. The law in regard to both meeting and overtaking a school bus reads as follows:

A. Every driver meeting a stopped school bus that has its red signal lights flashing shall stop before reaching the school bus and shall not proceed until the school bus moves or the signal lights have stopped flashing.

B. Every driver when overtaking a stopped school bus that has its red signal lights flashing shall stop at least 20 metres (66 feet) before reaching the school bus and shall not proceed until the school bus moves or the signal lights have stopped flashing.

The minimum fine for disobeying these laws is $100. More importantly, disregarding a school bus passing law could result in harm to a school age child.

Note to parents: If you have a youngster who is attending school for the first year you are naturally concerned for their personal safety. If you wait for the return of your child's school bus in the afternoon it is very important you do not wait on the opposite side of the roadway. Tragic accidents have occurred when a child, anxious to show their parent something from school, dashes across the road.

Scores of hunters took advantage of a chance to get a close look at the wide selection of guns and other gear on display at the second annual Hunting Show sponsored by Kennedy Surplus in Haliburton last Wednesday. Factory representatives were on hand to answer questions about the rifles.

Stanhope briefs

At a meeting of Stanhope council September 11, the following matters were discussed:

Council approved payment of an Ontario Home Renewal Program file in the amount of $2,200.

Severance application H 167/85 was approved conditional upon a minor variance to allow a lesser frontage than required by by-law.

Anson, Hindon, Minden council briefs...

At a regular meeting September 12, Anson, Hindon and Minden council considered the following matters:

Godfrey Saunders, municipal engineer, delivered a summary of his draft hydrogeologic survey of the Scotch Line Landfill Site. He confirmed that there is no migration of leachates outside of the landfill site. However, he recommended work be done to reduce the migration of leachates within the site, improve general drainage conditions, and finally to extend the life expectancy of this site for another 12 to 15 years. The clerk confirmed that a draft form of Saunders' report had been submitted to the Ministry of the Environment for approval. Based on this report, the Ministry of the Environment has offered the sum of $4,000 in grant funds, to be matched by the municipality, to commence the necessary remedial drainage work. Council discussed the difficulties inherent in locating a new waste disposal site, and agreed to proceed with remedial work during the current year.

By-law 85-42, a by-law to establish the rate of pay for election staff, was passed.

Policy No. 27, regarding building inspections by the Minden Fire Department, was adopted as amended.

The probationary employment status of B.A. Millar and Tammy McKelvey was hereby formally withdrawn, pursuant to the terms of Policy No. 42.

An inspection report and recommendations on a proposed closure of a road allowance on Lots 5 and 6, Conc. 5, Minden, were filed by the Parks Manager. Council concurred that public lake access in this area should be retained. The clerk was directed to write to the applicant and explore the possibilities of a land trade to maintain a public right of way but clear the question of ownership of the land on which the applicant's buildings are located.

The clerk reported to council on the provincial Joint Emergency Planning Program and the possibilities of obtaining funding for the acquisition of an emergency response water craft. Council requested that detailed specifications for the required equipment be requested from the Fire Chief, the Ambulance Supervisor and the Municipal Law Enforcement Officer for further consideration.

Planning goes on for canoe museum

Negotiations between the Haliburton County Historical Society, the Kanawa Museum board and provincial authorities, aimed at creating a canoe museum in Haliburton's Glebe Park, are continuing.

Provincial tourism minister John Eakins visited the proposed museum site on Sunday to discuss the concept with historical society president Frank Wallace and Haliburton Highlands Museum chairman

Ross Carver. And while there has been no commitment of funds from the province to date, both men say Eakins was "fairly positive" about the proposal, and vocal in his support for the concept.

Carver and Wallace have been negotiating with the board of the Kanawa International Museum for several months in hopes of obtaining all or a portion of the canoe, kayak and watercraft collection amassed by University of Toronto professor Kirk Wipper. Both men hope provincial, federal, corporate and community support can create a permanent facility to house the collection at the Glebe Park site which Dysart et al council has agreed to donate for the purpose.

Preliminary conceptual drawings for a canoe museum and auditorium have been carried out at no cost by a Toronto architect, and a Toronto lawyer is representing the historical society on a complimentary basis in negotiations with Kirk Wipper.

In a recent letter, Wipper gave his consent to "the launching of a museum building programme" at Glebe Park, and offered the view that "the Haliburton County Historical Society will have access to the specimens in the collection either exclusively or non exclusively."

The Society has received similar letters of support from K.G. Roberts, chairman of the Kanawa International Museum board, and board director David Merrifield.

A detailed proposal for the Glebe Park canoe Museum, including preliminary cost estimates, has been prepared by the Historical Society for use in discussions with various authorities, but is not expected to be made public because of its speculative nature.

Carver and Wallace will meet with the Kanawa board in Haliburton this Sunday to discuss the proposal further.

Council cautious about compressor

Haliburton County council wants more information about costs before backing a Haliburton County Mutual Aid proposal to buy an air compressor.

The device would supply pure, filtered air under high pressure to fill Scott air pack tanks used by all local fire departments. At present, most departments must take the tanks to Lindsay or Huntsville for refills, which is considered both inconvenient and expensive.

Bicroft reeve Bill Howe was the first member to comment on the Mutual Aid group's request, saying he would support it in principle but wanted to know what the compressor would cost.

Monmouth reeve Keith Tallman noted that the fire department in his municipality can fill air pack tanks from a series of storage cylinders which are recharged from time to time by an air supply company. He said other municipalities might consider similar devices, or enquire about using the one at the Monmouth fire station.

The matter is expected to be discussed at a subsequent council meeting once costs have been pinned down.

Two representatives of the Haliburton County Historical Society had MPP John Eakins out to the possible future site of a canoe museum. Frank Wallace, left, and Ross Carver were trying to talk Eakins into supporting their efforts.

Canada and we're giving them a chance to meet these extremely talented people."

Even though she now works at the Domain, plans to house the guests there were made while she was working at COTA.

"My involvement now is to make sure that when they come to the Domain of Killen they have an unbelievable time and experience the Domain frame of mind," she says.

The timing of the trip fits in perfectly with the splendour of the autumn leaves in the area. Many people know very little about Haliburton and are unaware that it can be just as beautiful and rewarding when the temperatures drop as it can be in the summer.

Not only must the industry try to keep Canadians from flocking to the south each year, but people in warmer climates must be made aware of the attractions of the changing seasons, Axler says.

"It can be done, it will be done," she says emphatically, determined to do her personal best to ensure that this trip to Canada isn't the group's last. "I have lived and travelled the world but Haliburton has warmed my heart."

Other countries have used their snow and cold to their advantage and are attracting thousands of winter vacationers. "They've taken that pristine beauty and said 'Come visit'," says Axler.

After a peaceful evening dining on French cuisine and relaxing by the fireplace, the visitors will leave the area to go on to other places such as Canada's Wonderland at Maple, and a market place in Peterborough.

"This gives the potential buyers and sellers a chance to meet with the owners or representatives of attractions and resorts not covered on the trip," says Axler of the half day in Peterborough. "It gives them the chance to do some on-the-spot buying and selling."

The group arrives at the Domain at 4:45 p.m. on Wednesday, October 16 and anyone requiring more information can phone the Chamber of Commerce, which Axler says has been instrumental in the organizing of the tour.

LEAD document is endorsed

A report prepared by the ministry of treasury and economics issued an economic development study for the county in May, 1979. And earlier this month, the management consulting firm of Pannell Kerr Forster completed a report for the LEAD Corporation which identified specific areas of the economy on which an economic development strategy should focus.

All three reports point to tourism as having the greatest potential for boosting the county's economy, and say the greatest gains could be made by broadening the peak season and enhancing low season activities.

As well, the reports point to natural resources as a source of economic development.

Factors impeding the potential for manufacturing include a relatively isolated location distant from major markets and a lack of good transportation routes.

The discussion paper notes that while the amount of high quality hardwood to support the lumber industry is declining in the county, there is an increasing demand for fuel wood and this could open the door for greater utilization of lower quality trees.

There is at present no active economic development commission in the county, but the report says council should consider forming one and hiring an economic development officer to head it.

The discussion paper recommends that the county seek federal and provincial funding "to assist in the development of a detailed strategy".

Council endorsed the document after copies of it were circulated to all members.

Federal approval for the two projects the LEAD Corporation has so far recommended could come later this fall.

past president Victoria Agnew, president Bob Hollobon and treasurer Elba Robinson.

Kinsmen convention coming to Haliburton

An estimated 600 Kinsmen and Kinettes will spend a long weekend in the Haliburton area next June as the three local clubs play host to the District Eight convention.

The event, called 'Highland Fling '86', will involve up to 75 clubs with a total membership of 1600 in an area stretching from Mississauga to Wawa.

Bob Nichol, spokesman for the Haliburton club, which is organizing the convention along with the Minden and South Algonquin Kinsmen, said delegates will be accommodated primarily in lodges on Lake Kashagawigamog, but the spinoff benefits to businesses throughout the county is expected to be substantial.

Meetings during the convention will be held at Wig-A-Mog and at the Haliburton Legion. Meals will be served to delegates at the Dysart arena, and will be prepared by a large catering firm that can supply mobile kitchen facilities and other essentials.

Nichol said local food service operators were contacted, but none wanted to take on the job in addition to their other operations in the midst of tourist season.

The last time the Kinsmen held a District Convention in Haliburton County was in 1973, and that event was organized by the Lindsay Kinsmen.

County clerk to step down

Haliburton County Clerk Wanda Scott will step down from the job at the end of December.

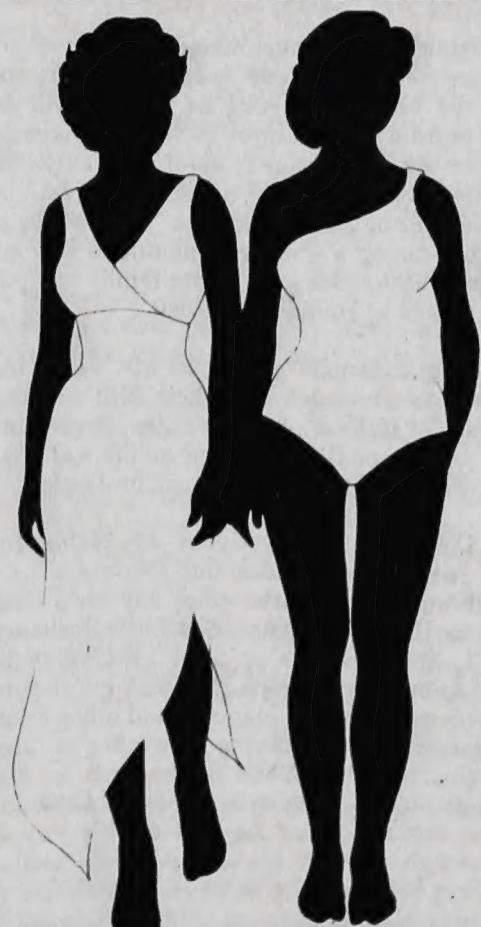

Scott, who was hired a year ago to take over from retiring clerk treasurer Winnifred Lahay Newberry, gave county council notice of her intention to resign so that a search for a new clerk could begin immediately.

County councillors praised Scott for her work on behalf of the county, saying she has done a very creditable job.

There was no indication last Wednesday of how soon council would begin advertising for Scott's replacement.

A commitment

Haliburton County council was asked last week to endorse a document prepared for the county's LEAD Corporation that points out the need for an economic development strategy, and in particular, for a commissioner of economic development. The document was of the 'motherhood' sort, stating the obvious in a form that federal bureaucrats require under the terms of the Local Employment Assistance and Development program, but it should not be signed and forgotten without some careful consideration of the subject it addresses, if not of its content.

In essence the document notes that there is no co-ordinated plan for the development of Haliburton County's economy, and no organized effort is being made to attract small, clean industry to the area. This is no surprise, of course. An economic development committee operated under the umbrella of the Chamber of Commerce several years ago, but it waned from frustration and lack of success.

None of the factors that hindered the former commission's efforts have changed. Transportation routes to Haliburton County are adequate to support its tourism base but insufficient to meet the demands of most manufacturing industries. The area is removed from major markets, and lacks an indigenous skilled workforce. There are no exploitable resources other than the forests, and their quality is declining as a result of indiscriminate harvesting and inadequate management. Even the tourism base is dramatically seasonal.

With all this in mind, should the concept of an economic development commission (and commissioner) be put aside as just so much idle dreaming? Definitely not. Every local politician, and every local citizen for that matter, should be deeply concerned about the county's economic future, and should be willing to commit a modest amount of tax dollars to fund a commission and a commissioner as a sort of speculative investment. Careful planning would be needed to ensure that the right person is found to take the job, and the term of the position should be neither too long nor too short - say, three years, to allow time for effective work to be done and benefits to be assessed.

The whole question of economic development remains an ill defined one, and the responsibility for job creation must rest primarily with the private sector rather than government if true growth is to be achieved. But it can be argued that Haliburton County should be reaching out to attract new entrepreneurs, and to sell the area's strengths to companies thinking of expansion. An economic development commissioner is perhaps the only person with a reasonable chance of achieving that goal.

Helping out

If it is true that the spirit of volunteerism has diminished in recent years, it is equally true that it still flourishes in many quarters, including Haliburton. Two examples of volunteerism at work in the communities are the candy striper program of young helpers at Haliburton Hospital, and the network of people who make Haliburton County Home Support Services a continuing success.

It is gratifying to recognize the contribution a number of young women are making to the local hospital by serving as student volunteers. Their youthful enthusiasm, kindness and concern for the welfare of others makes the medical staff's job of caring for patients a little bit easier. And it provides participants with an opportunity to learn not only about life's harsher realities, but also about the personal growth that comes to those who give as well as receive.

Volunteerism, whether by students at the hospital, seniors at home support, or elsewhere in the community, helps make Haliburton County a good place to live. May the spirit of giving that motivates volunteers never disappear.

Stanhope council is 'inconsistent'

To the Editor

To The Editor:

I have just finished reading "Petitioners want plebiscite" in today's Echo and was immediately struck by the inconsistency presented, namely and I quote: "council decided not to approve a study on whether to build an Ontario Hydro generating station at Buttermilk Falls." The reason for the decision was that council did not want to waste taxpayers' money. Stanhope has spent much more than the stated $24,000 for the Hydro proposal on its airport but I have never heard it classified as 'a waste of taxpayers' money', yet how else can one consider the expenditure of money which benefits so few at the expense of every taxpayer in the township?

I was one of the '225' taxpayers who signed the request for more consultation on the airport before we are committed to the ongoing deficits the airport will cause. Two hundred and twenty five names on a request is not an insignificant number in a township the size of Stanhope. I can recall recent elections when the total turnout was less than four hundred. If the so called 'plebiscite' will resolve this issue then why not proceed with it? After all, we are having an election this year and one more box to check shouldn't be that big a problem.

Yours sincerely,

Good water is an asset

To The Editor:

I wonder how many of your readers - cottagers, residents, former residents and yes, even visitors - have used and enjoyed the clear, cold, always available spring water on the Dover Spring Road, just east of the village.

Personally, I've talked with many former residents (who had returned to Haliburton for a visit) who recalled that even during the coldest winters in the past, the spring was always flowing.

What an asset to the village, not only for the availability of good water, but as a meeting place - the village pump (so to speak) and a historic site.

Maybe your good office might consider an idea I've had for some time. Possibly you could help co-ordinate it. The site of the spring is rustic and rural. Over the years it's been improved somewhat but with a little volunteer help a "Saturday work gang" from appreciative cottagers, it might be improved more. What I have in mind is to gather a small group of cottagers (seasonal residents) to move in to the site some Saturday morning next spring and hammer and saw, mix and mortar, lift and level and create a more attractive site.

There is loads of rustic stone and rocks all over the area to form a rock wall around the concrete holding wall. Attractive benches could be formed from logs and the entire area could be covered with slab stone. Several 'Lions Club' refuse containers in their attractive colours would add to the cleaned up appearance to the spring.

The appearance of the spring I'd leave to school students, the elementary kids, because it's their spring for the years ahead.

Over a period of time next spring the kids could send their drawing and ideas to you. Elaborate or simple. Their ideas.

A panel of newly elected councillors could act as a judging group; taking into account what can or cannot be done at the site, and the winning design submitted to the administration of the Municipality for approval and clearance. (I would think there could be red tape here because of property and road allowances, etc.) Then the cottagers' 'work gang' would move in. The winner of the best submitted design would do the unveiling some time during the summer. A "pop and hot dog" reception could follow.

It's only an idea. And like lots that have to clear municipal approval, it may be only a pipe dream.

This car was produced on special order by Durant Motors, Leaside, Ontario, and is the only one in existence. This is one of the many beautiful antique cars that will be on display. Don't forget to keep these dates in mind. It's this Friday, September 27 to Sunday, September 29.

We have mentioned on other occasions that the Highlands of Haliburton never seem to receive the recognition, publicity and media coverage which we so rightly deserve. We always seem to be the forgotten county. I think that we can see a bit of improvement in this area but in my estimation there is still a long way to go. I have mentioned this problem on many other occasions, but I seem to have to bring it up every time I hear someone mention neighbouring communities and our name is left out. It's no secret and you would be surprised at the number of people who reside in Toronto, which is only 140 miles from here, who have never heard of Haliburton. I think that some of the people think that the Haliburton Highlands is up in the Yukon.

From time to time the Echo is in need of old photos for our Pic of the Past each week. If you have any in your possession that we could use and that would be of interest to our readers we would certainly like to hear from you. The more information you can supply us with on each photo is a great help to us.

Just a reminder here that the Haliburton Figure Skating Club will be holding their annual Turkey Dinner this coming Sunday, September 29 at the Haliburton Legion from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Adults $7, children 12 and under $3, and pre-schoolers free.

If you have some suggestions that you would like to put forward to try and make the 1986 Haliburton Winter Carnival better, please plan to attend a meeting on Wednesday, October 2, 1985 at the Dyart arena at 8:00 p.m.

We have spoken on several occasions on the subject of community involvement. The community is where most of our day to day living is done and I think that we all have to agree that it is important to be involved in various aspects of community affairs. Many people get a great deal of satisfaction from being involved in local projects. One gets a great feeling of pride when he or she walks by something they have helped to establish. The community is always in need of workers, whether they are involved in group projects or as individuals going out to help better the lifestyle in the area. You must remember that the community is only as good as you make it.

The football season opened at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School recently and the field was a colourful site with football uniforms, the cheerleaders on the sidelines cheering their teams on to victory and then the array of colours worn by the many fans who were attending the games. We wish the Haliburton Redmen the best of luck in this year's season.

It shouldn't be too much longer before we will notice several colour tour buses in Haliburton during the next few weeks as visitors will be coming in from other centres to view the scenery and to see the countryside in all of its beauty. We are getting some very cold nights with frost and this should bring out the colours. The month of September can be a wonderful month so why not plan now to bring along the entire family and pay the Highlands of Haliburton a visit.

Our congratulations go out to Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Austin who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at Haliburton on Tuesday, September 10. Doreen Gibson (Woods) came all the way from Vancouver Island to attend the celebration.

Sid Say, a former resident of Haliburton County who now resides in Victoria, B.C., dropped into the office the other day for a chat. He told me that he had a house on Little Boshkung at RR 2, Minden right up until 1981 when he decided to move to Victoria. Sid told me that he keeps active by bowling, dancing and other forms of recreation while still being a member of three senior citizen clubs. While in the area he was staying at Sidney Gregory's at Maple Lake and when he left the office he was on his way to Peterborough to visit his daughter Geraldine. From there he was going on to Niagara Falls and Kingston later on in the week. He had planned to come back to Maple Lake before going back to his home in Victoria. He told me that he looks forward to visiting the Highlands of Haliburton once every year.

Report From Parliament

by Bill Scott, M.P.

Canadian sovereignty addressed

The voyage of the U.S. Coast Guard icebreaker Polar Sea through the Northwest Passage this summer demonstrated that we must find ways of exercising our sovereign jurisdiction in this area. In this case, the United States gave us a formal and explicit assurance that the voyage would not affect our legal claim to the area. The government feels however that we must go further to protect our claim.

On September 10, 1985 the Rt. Hon. Joe Clark, Secretary of State for External Affairs announced to the House the policy of the Government of Canada in respect of Canadian sovereignty in Arctic waters. In summary, the measures are as follows: immediate adoption of an Order in Council establishing straight baselines around the Arctic archipelago, effective January 1, 1986; immediate adoption of a Canadian Laws Offshore Application Act; immediate talks with the United States on co-operation in Arctic waters on the basis of full respect for Canadian sovereignty; an immediate increase of surveillance overflights of our Arctic waters by aircraft of the Canadian Forces, and immediate planning for Canadian naval activity in the Eastern Arctic in 1986; the immediate withdrawal of the 1970 reservation to Canada's acceptance of the compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice; construction of a polar, class 8 ice-breaker and urgent consideration of other means of exercising more effective control over our Arctic waters.

On September 9, the Rt. Hon. Brian Mulroney tabled in the House of Commons a set of documents providing detail on a package of major initiatives on public sector ethics our Government plans to implement. The seven components in the overall program are:

1. A new Conflict of Interest/Post-Employment Code for Public Office Holders;
2. Instructions to Ministers imposing specific and strict limitations on the hiring of family members;
3. Letters to Opposition Leaders on the subject of ethical standards for MP's and Senators;
4. An experimental program of Parliamentary scrutiny of Governor in Council appointments;

5. The registration of lobbying activity;
6. Advice to Crown Corporations respecting appropriate conduct in their dealings with the Government; and,
7. A review of the judicial appointments process.

As the Prime Minister stated in the House "It is a great principle of public administration -- I could even say an imperative -- that to function effectively the government and the public service of a democracy must have the trust and confidence of the public they serve. In order to reinforce that trust, the government must be able to provide competent management and, above all, to be guided by the highest standards of conduct."

During post-budget consultations with the Canadian Wholesale Drug Association, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, the Proprietary Association of Canada and the Canadian Diabetes Association, it was pointed out that some drugs and supplies used by patients to treat certain life-threatening illnesses such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease and respiratory ailments, are not included in the schedule of drugs that remained exempt from federal sales tax. On September 6, the Hon. Michael Wilson announced that "all the most important medications required to treat these serious illnesses will continue to qualify for exemption from federal sales tax". This will mean the continuation of sales exemption for products such as insulin syringes and infusion pumps, nitroglycerine and medical oxygen and certain other drugs for heart and respiratory disease including digoxin, digoxin, deslanoside, erythritol tetranitrate, isosorbide dinitrate, prenylamine, quinidine and its salts, aminophylline, oxtriphylline, theophylline, theophylline calcium aminoacetate and theophylline sodium aminoacetate. In addition, effective September 7, 1985 the federal sales no longer applies to blood glucose test strips, urine test sticks and blood glucose monitors used by many diabetics on a daily basis.

Pic of the Past

Real Estate office. Across the street on the right is the former Norm Roberts grocery store but at the time this photo was taken R.J. Bishop Real Estate had purchased the building. The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce is now in this location. On the way down the street 'Mr. Frostee', which was owned and operated by Steve Bowskill. Mr. Frostee is long gone and Curry Motors use the property to display their new cars. The white building was Frank Hodgson's insurance office and the new Kozy Korner building is now located on this property. Photo courtesy of Mary Pearsell.

Cleaning house waits until October Are we losing respect for parliament?

Northern Lights

by Virginia Muenzel

I suppose some people might think I'm a bit of a procrastinator. It's not really true, you know. It's just that I seem to be taking off in several different directions at any given time. I start several jobs and finish few. I am, however, very good at making lists.

The other day, I created the all time whopper of a list. It is a room by room, and building by building checklist of everything we have to do around here to get this place organized. It's also four pages long. There are headings and sub-headings. Ed's jobs and mine. Why, between the two of us, if we manage to complete the list, we'll have this place looking like something out of a magazine (preferably not MAD).

Mind you, it's going to take a while. After all, there's the barn, three garden plots, the cabin, the lakefront, the yard, and the house. To say nothing about the basement. I hate to think about the basement. The only way I'll ever see the floor of it is to send Ed on a long weekend to Buffalo while I have a three day basement sale.

One of my most important jobs will be to nag Ed to finish all the jobs he started this summer. He seems to have acquired this odd quirk of running out of steam or interest or supplies just about one foot or one hour before each project is complete. Or, if he does finish the job he has an artist's habit of signing his work (that's a polite way of defining a mistake). I don't know which is worse, a wall that has one piece of gyprock missing, or a wall with a new mounted can opener that covers up the hole he cut in the wrong place.

The whole problem is that we were terribly mismatched. One of us was supposed to be efficient. One of us was supposed to have the stick-to-itiveness to keep the other on the ball, and organized. Unfortunately, Ed is a pack-rat and I've always had trouble with organization. But it's far too late to remedy the situation. After twenty-eight years with him, it wouldn't pay to leave him for a neat-nik, orderly, immaculate person. Besides, we'd drive each other crazy.

Ed may have his faults, as do I. But we're used to each other. And, given enough time, we will get this place in shape. What's more, we're going to start the first thing in October.

Islanders should form own brigade Letters

To The Editor:

To the council of Anson, Hindon and Minden in regard to the purchase of a boat for cottages in Lutterworth Township: why should my tax money go to pay for extra fire protection for someone who chose to live on an island? They are covered with the same protection as the rest of the taxpayers. Maintaining access to your property is your own responsibility, and if our very able and capable fire chief says the expense is not warranted, he should be listened to. That's why he is the fire chief.

A better idea for island dwellers is to form their own auxiliary fire brigade, purchasing their own auxiliary pumps, to be used until the firefighters arrive. I am sure our chief and his men would be very willing to give free instructions on the use of such equipment.

Is our council ready to also buy mini pumps for those cottagers living back in on bush roads? Where do you draw the line? We in Carnarvon have yet to be supplied with a litter container although one was requested. It seems some parts of the townships have no problems with their wants. No one seems to know we are here until tax time. Let's remember at election time.

Churches work together

To The Editor:

On behalf of the Wardens and Parishioners of St. George's Anglican Church, I would like to thank all who took part in the United Church Talent Night, Sunday, September 15.

The proceeds of the evening, in excess of $650, have been presented to the St. George's Building Fund.

We often hear pot shots taken at various Christian communities for their lack of ability to work together. This talent night demonstrates once again the loving care and concern that our communities hold, one for the other. Our building project will involve us in raising in the order of $150,000 from within the community.

These talents so freely and generously given last week provide us not only with financial help, but much needed encouragement as we seek to minister effectively in the Haliburton region.

To the Rev. John James and his congregation, thank you for your love and support.

God bless,
John Phillips,
Rector

Question

Catherine Denholm

There was a time when people elected to represent us in Parliament were looked upon with respect. It was considered an honor to have local members on hand for public functions. This has evidently been changing.

It was brought up in Parliament recently that David Nickerson, a member of Parliament, should be fired and sent home when he was charged, pleaded guilty and was fined for beating his wife.

A general response to this situation seems to be that if every member who broke the law was fined and sent home there would be few left around Ottawa and bi-elections would occur every few weeks. Why is there such a feeling of disdain for the members of the federal legislature?

I imagine that lack of respect has developed over the last many years because no one has been sent home for breaking the law.

The harassment of women employees on Parliament hill which took place a few years ago and which came to light last spring were covered up then it appears, by those who were in charge and even last spring there was a feeling that the matter still was being hushed up and glossed over.

One argument against firing members of Parliament is that people with ordinary jobs are

Soccer teams aid Terry Fox fund

The Dixie Lee soccer team completed their Terry Fox tournament this past weekend, and raised $70 for the Cancer fund, including a generous donation from the West Rouge Blues.

In the first game played Sunday, the high school Senior Redmen defeated Dixie Lee 1-0. Harvey Williams played goal for Dixie Lee against a large and enthusiastic high school team. Chris Childs was the referee.

On Saturday, September 21 at 5:00 p.m. Dixie Lee defeated the West Rouge Blues 4-3. Tim Deremo played goal and he was ably supported by a few high school players and a few returning college players. Mike Hatkoski scored twice for Dixie Lee. Geoff Wynne was the referee.

In the last game on Sunday, September 22, the West Rouge Blues defeated the high school Senior Redmen 5-1. The Blues used a few older Dixie Lee players while the Redmen used a few younger Dixie Lee players. The visiting Blues were presented with Haliburton lapel pins to go with those obtained on tours to Thailand and Korea.

Dixie Lee would like to arrange a second game against the Redmen next Sunday, September 29 at 2:00 p.m. Anyone interested in playing should contact Jim Milne at 457-1848.

Next summer, probably on the weekend of July 5 and 6, Dixie Lee are planning a tournament for over 35 players. The highlight of the tournament will be a team from Denmark, not the Netherlands as previously reported here. Dixie Lee would like some help in showing this team a special time, including a night or two of camping outdoors. The West Rouge Blues and one or two older teams from the Muskoka District S.A. will probably also take part.

Redmen lose to Brock, Juniors win 16-0

Haliburton high school's Redmen football teams were winners and losers last Friday when they travelled to Brock high school in Cannington. The senior Redmen ended up on the short end of a 16-2 score, while the local Juniors fared much better, shutting out their Brock opponents 16-0.

The Redmen expected to be tested by Brock, particularly in the case of the Juniors, since Brock had overpowered I.E. Weldon 56-0 the previous week, but the local boys proved tough to beat.

The senior Redmen got off to a very fast start, scoring a single point on the kickoff when Alex Little booted the ball into the endzone with the help of a following wind.

Later in the first quarter, Haliburton again made good use of the wind advantage as Little kicked a 30 yard punt that added another single point.

Brock replied with a single of their own early in the second quarter, but the Redmen continued to move the ball well. Quarterback Trevor Powers put his team in scoring position on a 75 yard romp that was cut short by a tackle on the six yard line. On the next play he called a short pass in search of a touchdown but the throw was picked off.

"That was probably the turning point," head coach Gary Brohman said.

In the third quarter the Redmen once again had the advantage of the wind and moved into the Brock zone but turned the ball over on a fumble at the 30 yard line. Momentum was lost and Brock took control, notching two touchdowns in the fourth quarter for a 16-2 win.

Peter Allore was a standout for the Redmen, intercepting a Brock pass and recovering two fumbles. Gord Wood also snagged an interception.

Coach Brohman was impressed by Brock's play, and speculated later that they might be on their way to an undefeated season.

Jrs. win

The Junior game was a satisfying one for Haliburton, who had to be just a little bit uneasy about Brock's margin of victory over I.E. Weldon the previous week.

The Haliburton boys took control early in the game as quarterback Ted Paish marched his team down the field, capping the drive with a 15 yard touchdown toss to Jeff Francis.

Paish then tried a two point conversion and was good on a throw to Craig Crowe.

There was no other scoring in the first half of play.

In the third quarter the Redmen once again moved the ball well, with strong running from Craig Crowe and good work from back-up quarterback Scott Russell.

Haliburton's second touchdown of the game came on a six yard from Crowe. A two point conversion attempt was also good as Paish, found Crowe in the endzone again.

Drawdown begins

The decline of the Haliburton water levels resumed again in the week ending September 16, 1985. Quite dry conditions have occurred since the heavy rain of September 5, giving the lakes a chance to recede. A drop of about 4% occurred over the week to be 61.3% of maximum storage on the 16. This brought the stored water to be about 8% above the 10 year average.

The drawdown of the lakes is expected to proceed at about 5% per week (averaged over all the lakes) to reach the 10 year average by Thanksgiving. Wet weather might delay this, but dry weather would probably not make it decline much faster within the next two weeks.

A large part of the surplus is now gone from the Kawartha and the flows were reduced sufficiently by the 16th to open all the remaining locks for navigation. The flow has been further reduced over the week until it is very near the inflow rate and these lakes have nearly stopped declining at a little less than their respective full levels.

Bassetts take lead in bowling

Sandy Barr and Bill Juby were top bowlers for the Bassetts last Wednesday afternoon. They overtook the Poodles by seven points, putting the Bassetts in the lead with 10 points. The St. Bernards beat the Snouzers and took five points, placing second with 9 points. Beagles are third with 8 points. Terriers have 7 points, Snou-zers 4 points and Poodles 3 points.

High singles so far are Harry Henderson 254 and Joan Brown, 260. High triple so far are: Harry Henderson, 645; and Mary Lou Bird, 559.

Man of few words, Len Holmes' life has filled a book

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

Len Holmes can be a man of few words but maybe that's because his life in Wilberforce can speak volumes. A trapper, hunter, fisherman, cabin builder and odd jobs man, Holmes has had enough experiences to fill a book.

That's precisely what Richard Pope thought when he met Holmes a few years ago when he started building his own cabin. The visits first started out as friendly advice sessions but "he ended up as part of the family." Next month, those endless conversations are coming out in book form telling of the life and times of Len Holmes.

"Me 'N Len" takes a sensitive look at Holmes' life as a trapper and member of the Wilberforce community. Born on a farm just across the street where he now lives with his wife, Ida, Holmes has seen a lot happen in this small village.

"One time I knew everybody around Wilberforce, now I just know a quarter," he says from his kitchen, where the wood oven is creating a cozy warmth. When asked how he felt about everyone knowing all there is to tell about him, Holmes replied "It doesn't bother me too much...the majority of people know what you're working at anyway."

Since getting arthritis in his legs, Holmes' busy pace has slowed down, as much by choice as necessity. A robust looking 82-year-old, Holmes looks as though he still could go out trapping by himself in the woods for a week.

"I've had to give up the trapping but I still hunt a bit in the fall," he says. His wife adds with a grin that every chance he can get he's out trying to catch "the big one that got away."

His trapping career started when he left the farm after his father died because "you had to go anywhere you could make the most money."

"I just picked it up myself. I guess I was born with it in me. Grampa Smith used to do some of it himself but my father never did. It never bothered me any."

One of the chapters in the book talks about the time Holmes was hiking through the woods with a pack full of food. Rounding a corner he saw two bear cubs and knew the mother wasn't going to be far behind.

"I just stood there," he remembers. "There's no use in running because they can run faster than you." Eventually he dropped his pack and the mother bear took no more interest in him.

This story will be illustrated with one of the 30 pictures in the book done by Peterborough artist Neil Broadfoot, and 50 old photographs.

"It will be a bigger book than what we counted on," Holmes says. The original paintings will take up a lot of room and the type will be larger than normal so seniors will find it easier to read. It was supposed to be printed by now but delays were caused when it was decided to go with a rustic brown print.

"It's pretty well my life history from the time I left my farm," he says but outsiders will also find it interesting because of the insights that will be given about the town.

Since few people still earn their money by trapping, history buffs will also be fascinated by the book. Every three days, Holmes had to check his traps in the dead of winter, the time when the animal's coat is at its thickest and best.

"You went in there and you never saw anybody until you came back to Wilberforce," he remembers. Sometimes he took hunting groups out to the woods and his wife would have plenty of good food for them to eat on their return. Ida can remember a time when people were constantly in and out of their home.

Summers were spent building log cabins on the various lakes in the area. Not much money was to be had in the woods, so Holmes took to building cottages for people who later let him hunt off the land.

"I liked the woods but I had to give it up," he says. "You'd have to like it to stay with it."

This year, the only trapping he's done is around the house since their cupboards have been besieged by mice, chewing up everything they written report on its meeting with representatives from the Minden Agricultural Society and certain concerned ratepayers on August 30, 1985. The committee recommended that the building be erected to the north of the tree line and west of the existing food booth toward the former curling club. The Agricultural Society members requested clarification on who would arrange the move and bear the resulting costs. Concern was also expressed over the required separation of this building from the food booth in order to comply with any existing health regulations. Dave Stevens confirmed that neither the Health Unit nor the Ministry of Agriculture and Food have any specific rules in this regard. Councillor Pat Burk recommended a proper development plan for the fair grounds in order to ensure a continuity of building appearance and location. Council agreed to meet on Thursday, September 26 at 6:30 p.m. to discuss this matter, as well as the following item.

Several members of the Minden Lawn Bowling Club attended to further their previous discussion with council on the management and use of the former curling club building. President Alberta Maitland confirmed her club's desire to have full use of the building during the summer months, and not to have to continue to vacate the premises for three weeks in August of each year for use by the Fair Board. She stressed the inconvenience and cost of having to take up and relay the bowling rugs each year, as well as the resulting disruption of the club's bowling schedule. Council confirmed that an engineer has been retained to conduct a structural evaluation of this building. Armed with the resulting report, council will then meet to examine the future requirements and use of the entire fairgrounds and all related structures. Once the members of council have reached a consensus at the September 26, 1985 committee meeting, a further meeting involving representatives from the Agricultural Society and the Lawn Bowling Club will be held so that all organizations which use the fair grounds will be able to plan for future activities.

The clerk was requested to make the necessary arrangements so that an All Candidates Night may be held on Saturday, October 26, 1985, at 7:30 p.m.

The following accounts were approved for payment: General, $29,228.43; Water, $13,999.24; and Sewer, $3,126.54.

August road accounts in the amount of $37,846.06 were approved for payment.

Permission was granted to the Minden Kinsmen Club to hold its annual Demolition Derby in the area to the north side of the upper parking area of the Minden Community Centre on October 12, 1985, provided that the grounds are left in a clean and tidy condition.

Council consented to the Royal Canadian Legion holding its annual tag day on November 9.

The following persons were authorized to enroll in the Municipal Administration course at Sir Sandford Fleming College at a cost of $120 each: Tammy McKelvey, Kathy Lloyd, Diane Dennie.

People working against hunger in 147 countries of the world will observe World Food Day on October 16, 1985, and council agreed the municipality will participate. Council anticipates that all citizens will welcome the opportunity to increase their awareness of severe world hunger and its solutions by participating in local events to force the issue into public view.

Council agreed to absorb up to $200 per month, for a period of six months from the commencement of the program, representing the difference between the estimated auditorium rental costs for the proposed Chace Place program at the Community Centre of $500 per month, and Chace's operating budget allotment for rent of $300. The Recreation Committee will then report to council on the actual financial impact of Chace's occupancy for further consideration of cost subsidies for the duration of the 12 month Chace program.

Council concurred with the recommendation of the Recreation Committee to hire an additional employee on a six month contract.

Council agreed that the roadways in Coxfarm Estates will be thoroughly graded by the Municipality, and that an invoice for this work will be forwarded to the owner, pursuant to the terms of the Subdivision Agreement.

Sharks don't deserve reputation: writer

Dangerous, yes,
but fascinating

by R.D. LAWRENCE

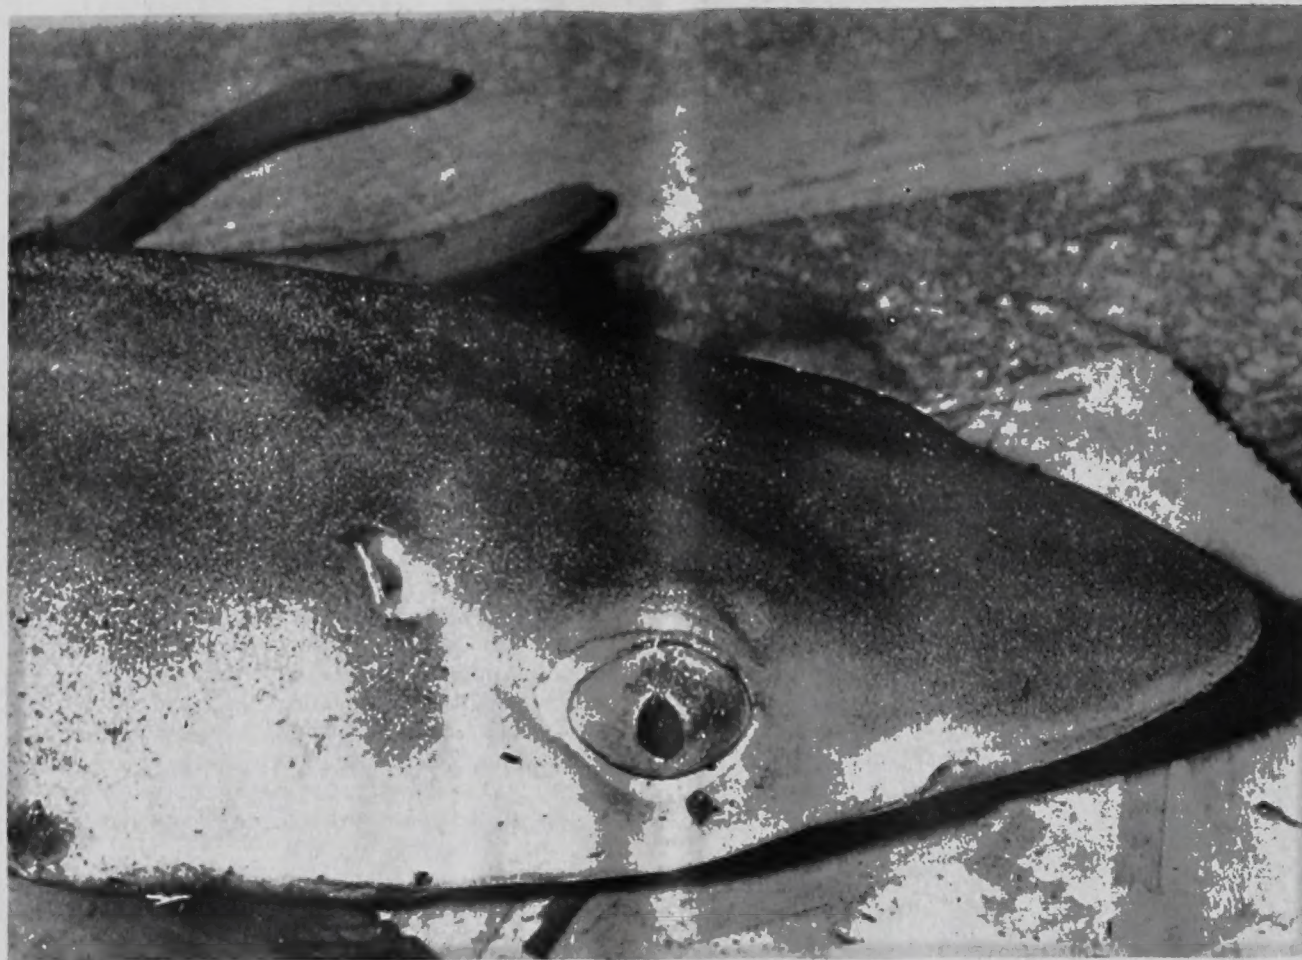

It is a common, but erroneous belief that sharks are only found in warm waters and so it may come as a surprise to many Canadians to learn that the most feared of all selachians, the great white, is irregularly sighted off the west coast of Vancouver Island as well as in the Atlantic, off the coast of Nova Scotia.

I have studied sharks in many waters of the world and although I know that these great fish are truly cosmopolitan, reaching even Arctic waters, I was yet unprepared for an encounter with an eight-foot blue shark while I was diving at the north end of Laredo Inlet, a narrow arm of the Pacific Ocean located in the southern part of Princess Royal Island, latitude 52 degrees 50 minutes North.

I was at a depth of 44 feet in an area where the ocean bed was smooth, encrusted with boulders and of fairly open aspect, only occasional patches of bull kelp obscuring vision. Behind me, was a sheer rock face; about 200 feet north of me, my boat was at anchor, its hull seen as a vague, moving white shape. I had been watching a large rockfish that was hunting a smaller sculpin when I noticed a large moving shadow coming towards me. I thought at first that it was a Dall's porpoise, a small black-and-white whale the markings of which are similar to those of the Orca, or killer whale. Moments later, however, as the creature drew closer, its sleek, torpedo-shaped outline told me that I was watching a shark.

Kicking of the bottom, I frog-paddled to the rock face, placed my air tanks against it and waited, anxious to see the shark, but not too eager to meet it in open water, where the advantage was all in favor of the selachian. Perhaps half a minute later I was able to recognize the species. It was a blue shark, a small one, as these fish go, for they attain a length of 21 feet.

Experience with others of its kind told me that the blue had been attracted to my location by my own vibrations as I moved and by the rush of my air bubbles as I breathed. Then too, it may well have actually tasted me at long distance, for I had a few cuts and scrapes on my legs and arms from contact with some of the more jagged rocks. In any event, the shark came straight for me.

When it was about ten feet away, I lunged towards it. The blue immediately sheared away, as I had expected it would, for sharks, for all their reputation for savagery, are nevertheless fairly timid animals.

I thought that the blue was going to quit my area, but moments later it turned and came towards me again, this time at higher speed. As it neared me, it slowed its momentum and when it was almost within arm's reach I leaned forward and punched it at the end of the nose, an area of great sensitivity in all sharks that is equipped with small pits that are capable of detecting extremely weak electrical fields; like the electric field put out by a not-too-daring diver! In an event, the blue turned away again.

It seemed that my visit was a little too interested in me, so I deemed it wise to make my way towards my boat, keeping my back to the rock face and my feet close to the bottom. In this way I travelled about half the distance toward the vessel accompanied by the shark, which alternately swam towards me, turned away, entered deeper water, and then came back.

When I could see my boat clearly, noticing that its anchor rope was rising and falling with the sea's heave, I felt better. At about the same time the shark wheeled away suddenly and disappeared, not to return again. My assumption was that the slowly-moving anchor rope had intimidated the selachian. This was not very remarkable, because although sharks can be extremely bold at times, most often they will dash away from some quite innocent object.

During the week that followed my encounter with the blue shark, I fished for others of its kind. In all, I caught seven selachians, the smallest a male only three feet long, the largest a six-foot long female. All were Pacific dog-fish, selachians that despite their common name are nevertheless sharks and quite capable of inflicting nasty bites on the unwary. Indeed, not long before the morning, on the northern part of Vancouver Island, I had been present when one of these fish had bitten off the first joint of a fisherman's little finger. The man was cleaning his fish at water's edge (and thus attracting the sharks by throwing the offal into the water). When he leaned over to wash his hands, the shark struck. I rendered first aid and transported the victim to hospital where, after a small argument with an incredulous young doctor, shark bite was diagnosed and treated.

The 350 known species of sharks that are found in all seas and oceans of our planet come in all shapes and sizes, from tiny, one-foot long little fish to the giant whale shark, which is believed to attain a maximum length of 50 feet. In between, there are such notorious selachians as the great white, the tiger, the hammerheads, the makos, sandbars, blues, bulls and a number of others that are all known to have attacked humans at various times in a number of widely separated places.

The great white is the most feared, mainly because of films such as 'Jaws' and many other fictional exaggerations, although it has attacked more than a few people. Undoubtedly, it is a fearsome creature, second to none in strength and determination once it has committed itself to an attack. But just as dangerous, though less well known, are tigers, blues, hammerheads, makos and the others, belonging to a group known as Requiem Sharks, the name stemming from the mass for the dead celebrated by the Roman Catholic Church.

So, yes, sharks are dangerous! They have attacked at least 1700 people during the last century and will continue to attack humans now and then. But, for the average swimmer in Canada, Florida, or even in Australia, where many sharks are found, the chance of getting attacked is less than the chance of being struck by lightning.

Indeed, considering the literally millions of bathers that flock to all seaside resorts world-wide during the summer months, it seems that sharks are really not very fond of human flesh, for it is estimated that only between 20 and 30 people are likely attacked worldwide in any one year: the percentage, compared to the numbers of people using the oceans for recreation is too small to compute meaningfully.

Sharks have fascinated me since I was a child of eight, when I caught my first one alive -- it was ten inches long -- and kept it in a tide pool for an entire summer. Later I caught more, the largest, when I was ten, five feet long. This one, a cat shark, became quite a chum of mine and would feed from my hand every time I dived into the pool where it was kept captive.

Some sharks lay eggs, like chickens, but in leathery cases that are fastened to undersea plants and remain there until the sharklets chew their way out; other sharks retain the eggs in their bodies and the embryo's develop inside the mother, but live off the egg yolk rather than off the mother's energies. Yet other sharks nurture their embryos much as animals do, in womb-like sacks inside the mother's body.

The latest and most bizarre shark to come to the notice of science is called Megamouth, a strange, 17 foot long creature with enormous jaws and small teeth that got entangled in the sea anchor of an American navy vessel in the Pacific ocean. Most shark investigators, however, are sure that new species are still waiting to be discovered in the depths of our seas and oceans. It may even be that the ancestral giant, Careharodon megalodon, believed to be the progenitor of the great white, is still lurking way down in the ocean depths, a creature between 60 and 80 feet long that could swallow a man much as a trout takes a fly.

From personal experience, I can say that sharks are not nearly as nasty as most people think they are. I even find them likeable; certainly, they are fascinating. I mean, how many animals do you know that in theory, at least, could probably live forever?

Audience gleans personal insight

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

The shark is a species to be studied and understood, not feared in ignorance, R.D. Lawrence told his small but interested audience at an open lecture at the Rails' End Gallery on Sunday.

"They are fascinating," says the celebrated author whose latest book, The Shark: Nature's Masterpiece, is about to be published. "It's endless when you get to know the shark."

Take for instance the female shark's ability to hold sperm until she is ready to get pregnant, maybe in the next year. Or the animal's ability to sense an electrical current or one-millionth of a volt. Then there are its built-in polarized sunglasses than can screen out the sun's bright rays.

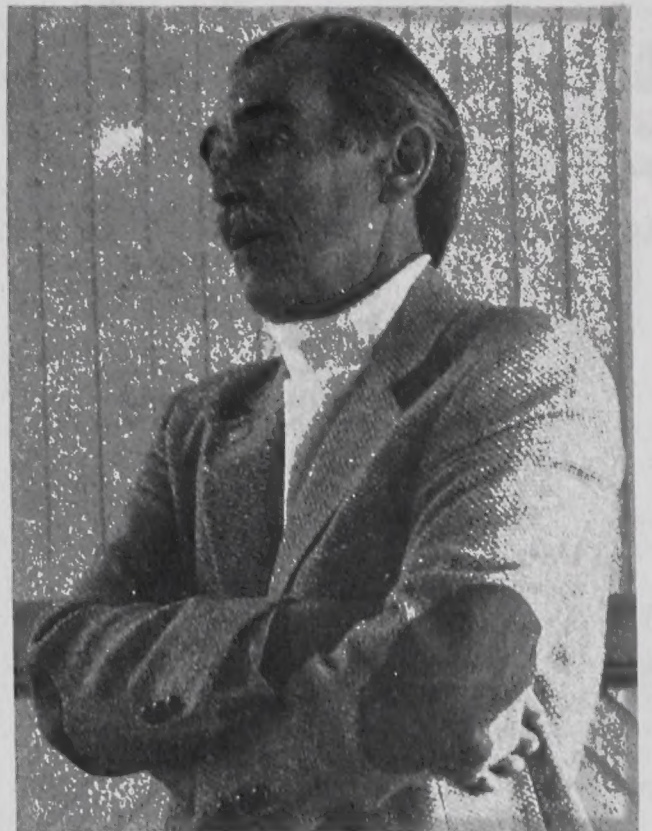

Lawrence decided to inform the public about the more intriguing aspects of a shark's life because "the 'Jaws' thing (the movie) was too much in the public eye and what the biologists were writing was too dry."

Ever since that movie about a predatory shark lurking off the shores of a holiday resort, hit the screen people have become fascinated by the shark's power but don't really understand it.

"All animals are territorial but there's also our personal territory or space. In the shark world, its personal space is impossible to know."

He does know however, that when you do invade its personal space, the shark will hunch its back, and swing its hind end from side to side. The problem is that you might be swimming in this space and be unable to see the danger signals the shark is giving off below you.

A shark will rarely bite a person for food, Lawrence says. More often than not, the shark will just bite once as a warning and then leave the person alone. It would be very easy to bleed to death in salt water with just one small wound, however.

When R.D. Lawrence speaks, everyone is pleased to listen. The wildlife author was at the Rails' End Gallery on the weekend to talk about what he has learned about animals and humans.

"The chance of being bitten by a shark are less than the chance of getting struck by lightning," he says.

Lawrence was far more reluctant to talk about his next book, on timber wolves, because it has yet to go to the printers.

Members of the audience were keen to listen to Lawrence's opinion on everything from the condition of our forests, life in the city, to recent medical breakthroughs. Here are some of this theories about a variety of issues.

"Cabin fever doesn't happen anymore to the trapper but its happening in the cities where the apartment has become the fortress."

"One of the most frightening things about not always fired for drunk driving or beating their wives, so why have a different code for elected people.

There is a big difference. The people we elect and send to Ottawa are responsible for the laws of the land therefore they are obliged to adhere to those laws entirely. They should know this when they accept a nomination to run for office.

I wonder why the honest, law-abiding members who are certainly the large majority in the House of Commons do not insist on cleaning up and airing out all rumours and law infractions? Until that happens and those who are guilty are sent home, this disdain for our governing people will continue.

Sharing their time, vitality Candy Strippers help others

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

They are the unsung heroes of the hospitals, doing their endless string of chores with a smile on their faces and no thoughts of getting paid.

The red and white striped skirts and bibs have become synonymous with good cheer and laughter. No clinical white for these workers, their job is to ease the pain with caring and attention, not medicine and technical jargon.

In Canada, the history of candy strippers is a long and fruitful one, but in Haliburton, the program only got started four years ago. Talk to the staff, patients and candy strippers themselves though, and one can tell the short history has nonetheless been a successful one.

"Young and cheerful, they bring a ray of sunshine into the hospital," says Haliburton Hospital administrator Marlene Bennett. "They have time to sit down and talk to the patients."

When Renee Curry and Stephanie Bain started candy stripping, they thought it would help their future plans of becoming a nurse. Nursing seemed a perfectly natural career for both of them since their mothers worked together at the Haliburton Hospital.

Joining up when the program first began, Renee, soon to be 17, has had second thoughts about a nursing career.

"When I first started in Grade 9 I was interested in becoming a nurse. Now I don't want to be a nurse but I want to work in the medical field." Her plan now is to become a medical secretary.

Her friend and cohort Stephanie is steadfast in her aim to become a nurse, now more so since she has seen for herself what her responsibilities will include. An achiever, Stephanie plans to get her Bachelor of Science degree which will enhance her nursing possibilities.

"I realize now more of the things they do and I enjoy doing it," says the pert 17-year-old. So far nothing has happened to change her mind and her Grade 12 subjects have been carefully picked with a nursing career in mind.

Once these girls start talking about what they do at the hospital it is hard to get them to stop. One will start off on one thought and the other will be able to start off on it, knowing exactly what the other is trying to get across.

After checking with the nurses about who's in the hospital and whether they can enter their rooms, the candy stripper brings her two-hour stint. "We wash dirty glasses and refill them, make arm bands with gauze, fill up supplies, make pregnant mothers' kits, talk to the patients and make flower arrangements," says one.

"Sometimes we write letters for the patients or read books," adds the other. Then there's the back rubs, feeding of meals, face washes and basically any other small job the nurses require of them. They are the Jills of the trades and unlike their male counterpart, Jack, they have learned to master each skill with confidence.

It is hard to say whether their sensitivity is an acquired trait or whether it is that compassion for others in need that made them begin candy stripping in the first place. Whatever the answer, when talking to the girls today, their deepfelt belief in helping others is obvious.

"It's the fact that you know anything you do will help them feel a little bit better," says Stephanie on why she has stayed with it for three years. "Lots of times what's really hard is if you come back the next week and somebody's not there."

Learning to deal with death is just one of the things they have had to cope with since many of the patients in the 10-bed hospital are elderly.

"When you're there and you see a very sick person it's hard to say they're really sick," says

Renee. "You just see them dying and it's really hard."

But then there is the celebration of new life to cheer them up. For Renee, her favourite job is working with the "purple" newborns. "You get to see the mother playing with them for the first time."

To these two, working at the hospital is like going to see their extended family, with adopted grandparents and nieces and nephews filling any gap in their lives.

"It's helped me," says Renee. "You get to work with people who aren't family. You learn to take care of people. It makes you feel really good inside when you leave at 6 o'clock and you know you've helped someone overall."

"It helps with your communication skills," Stephanie is quick to add. "Sometimes someone is really friendly and you talk to them a lot. It makes you realize if you've had a bad day how thankful you should be for all you have."

Besides picking up lessons on human psychology, the candy strippers have also learned some practical things. "This one old man started making me do all these math quizzes and he had all these trivia facts. I learned a lot from him," Renee remembers.

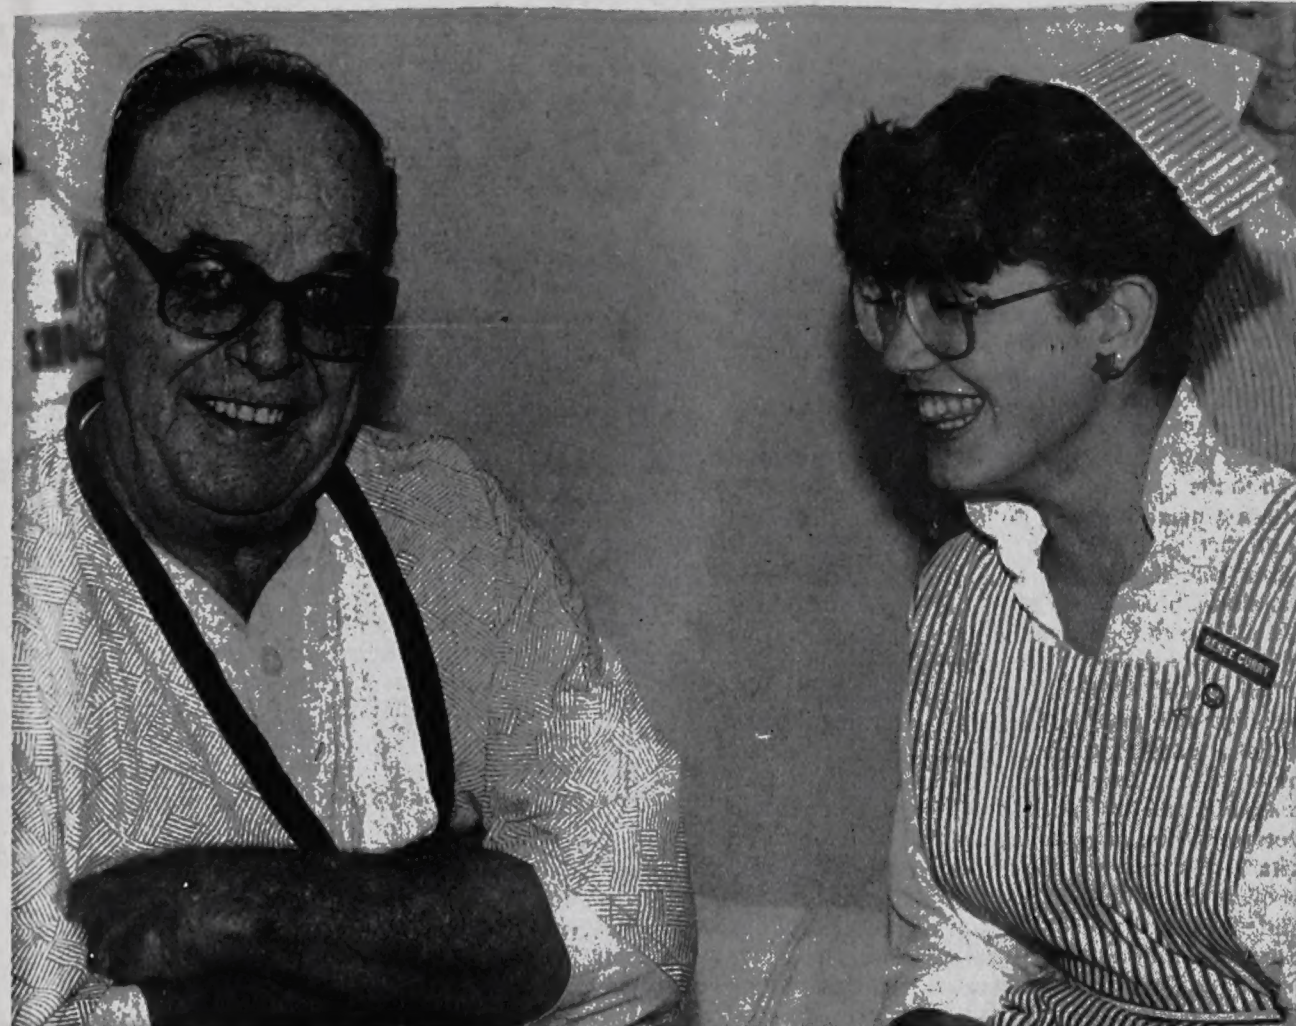

They also respect the work their mothers, or the other nurses, do in a regular shift.

"The nurses work so hard and they are really nice to the patients," says Renee. Stephanie joins in on the praise, saying nothing but complimentary things about the co-ordinator of the candy stripe program, Elaine Jackson.

The driving force behind the program, the one who trains the girls and organizes their schedules, Jackson "is really energetic and excited about it. All the girls really get along with her."

Indeed, the program had been in the planning stages for years and it was not until Marlene Bennett found someone she could entrust with the great responsibility that the dream became a reality.

Stephanie and Renee are the focus of this article because they have been working at the hospital the longest. When Renee first started, everyone was a few years older than she was though she soon became a senior when they left

'It makes you feel really good', says Renee Curry of her work as a teenage volunteer. It doesn't seem to be doing Gordon Stoughton harm either.

Haliburton to continue their education, many of them in nursing.

After the summer months, when candy stripping takes a back seat to outdoor fun, summer jobs and family vacations, Jackson has once more began organizing this year's corps of volunteers. Their number may be small but their potential for growth and development is quite large.

Volunteering at the hospital seems to have done nothing but good things for Renee and Stephanie. They have met new challenges and conquered them with ease, all the while reaching out to the other members of the community where they were born, to give something back to the people who have helped them.

Sometimes it may be the simple act of just sitting near a bedside absorbing all the tales about what Haliburton was like to eyes that were once young too. Or it might be doing a routine chore that would have otherwise taken the nurses away from bedside care. Working among sickness and sometimes death, they have learned to appreciate their youth and vitality, not wanting to Wilberforce has been the home grounds of James and Monetta Outram for the last forty years. Owners of the Birch Villa, the two have had many fond memories and some hardships too at their spot on Grace Lake.

Recalling the past: James Outram talks of tipplers, trailers

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

Sitting on a picnic table overlooking Grace Lake, James Outram's eyes may be wandering along the sandy beach but you can tell by the inflection in his voice that he is seeing far more than just sand and water.

He's talking about the days he used to cater to the rich and famous, driving them around from place to place or taking them to the best fishing spots around.

He can remember Prince Eddy as a great tippler, one who could enjoy his spirits as much as he enjoyed divorcee Wallace Simpson.

Premier Leslie Frost had the occasional drink or two but his favourite occupation was coming up to Wilberforce for the fishing.

"One man is no better than the other," Outram philosophizes. He's seen men at their best and worst and whether they're rich or poor, they're all the same to him.

Radium mines helped to build up the highlands

The interview is supposed to be about the Birch Villa trailer park he and his wife have been running for 40 years, but more often than not, Outram can find other more interesting things to talk about.

His first introduction to the area was in 1912 when he came up to Gooderham with friends. Visits were cut short by the First World War and Outram soon found himself fighting overseas.

"We boys in the First World War were ten times more comrades. We relied on each other because we remained in one spot," he recalls.

One of those friends started mining radium in the area and soon "there must have been $100 million spent around here." New roads were put in and the area became better known to city folks who had yet not discovered the tourism possibilities.

Outram beat them to it though.

"I've always hunted and fished and when I came home from overseas I took a motor mechanics course," he says. "On account of living in England and being around cars, I was took by the notion of cabins on the highways."

How he eventually set up business just a few kilometres from Wilberforce has many starts and endings.

"We used to come up here and one time deer hunting we pulled into Haliburton to get gas. When I went in and paid the man, another man came in and said 'Shut down the pumps, it's Armistice Day'."

That man also sent them over to a good fishing spot in Harcourt where Outram and his wife got a room and meals for $5 a week.

"I got to know all the men around there and we were coming up one Saturday night and I got talking to a friend who knew another place to stay."

Residents 'less demanding'

By MARTHA PERKINS
Staff Reporter

The residents of Haliburton demand less from the government for social assistance than the provincial average even though the area has the highest percentage of senior citizens, the annual meeting of the Haliburton County Home Support Services was told on Friday.

"This is one of the most exceptional areas in the province to work with," said guest speaker Marlene Edwards, the director of the Haliburton-Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit Home Care Program. "The demand on service by Haliburton residents is considerably less than it is in my other two counties."

Much of this can be accounted for by the large volunteer force in the area, she said. Basing her talk on humanistic approaches to health care, she stressed the one-on-one approach familiar to those who work with the Home Support Services.

"The services are intensely personal, neighbour intensive, highly specialized and demanding and involve one's emotions," she said. This is opposed to government control where most people are dealt with in an institution on a professional basis.

"I have the healthy suspicion that the concentration of power of the government has the potential to stifle initiative," she said, adding that quality may be compromised by political expediency.

The people of Haliburton are working against more government involvement by setting up such volunteer organizations as Home Support but there are fewer volunteers in this generation than there were in previous times, Edwards pointed out.

Lindsay is starting to set up its own senior support group and "because you've been successful, we know we will be too," Edwards told her audience of 160 people.

The Legion hall was packed with volunteers from all areas of the county and also some local dignitaries. Besides the turkey luncheon and the speech, general business was also attended to.

Bob Hollobon was acclaimed president for the upcoming term, and said that while he looks forward to working with everyone, "we're going to have a tough year with the drop-in centre but we have volunteers and they keep coming back for more work." The Home Support group was unable to get a grant for a centre co-ordinator again so it will have to be manned entirely by volunteers.

It was with teary eyes that Victoria Agnew bid farewell to everyone as she ended her post as president. "We came through," she said proudly. Until a first vice-president is found, she will be temporarily filling that position.

Elected 2nd vice-president was James Wilkinson of Kennis Lake. Secretary is Lenor Gillespie, and treasurer is Elba Robinson.

An annual fiscal report, read by treasurer Aileen Robertson, showed a balance of $19,192, up $3,000 from the previous year. In 1984, the drop-in centre final payments were made and the first Senior Games were held, two accomplishments the group are very pleased with.

The newsletter was filled with reports from all the different areas the Home Support Services operates out of. Seniors in every part of the county receive help through the meals on wheels program, home help, planned social activities and outings, and good old fashioned friendly visits.

The pleasures are simpler ones, like the reaction you get when you bring a bouquet of flowers into a room to brighten things up.

"It makes you feel good when you come in and their faces just light up," says Stephanie. "There are a lot of times if it's busy the nurses don't have time to visit with the patients. Half of the people in there are lonely and bored."

So now the girls know how far a friendly hello will go or how much it means to someone who has been lying in a hospital bed to see a bright, smiling face enter the room and share a few moments of their lives.

Facing the scrum:

Politicians and reporters seem a silly bunch

By MARTHA PERKINS

If there is word pundit out there, please help me out in my hour of need. I know there is a flock of sheep and a herd of cows, but I need to come up with a new saying to describe what a group of reporters are when they become a scrum.

A scrum, for those of you have yet to discover the mystical ritual, occurs when a group of reporters besiege a politician, their microphones stuck into his or her face like an intravenous tube nourishing the demanding public.

I experienced my first scrum when I arrived at the PineStone Inn on Monday with countless other reporters waiting to get the big scoop. Notebook in hand, and camera slung casually over my shoulder, I wanted to look the part of the mature, confident "Journalist" standing ready to dig out of the drabble of political nonsense, Ontario's answers to the problems of the world.

Suddenly I was standing forlornly by myself. In an amazing rush of mass movement, the media corps took their positions around 'The Door'. That is, the door from which the premier and ministers were supposed to exit.

Too bad the PineStone didn't think of putting up a sign mentioning the whereabouts of this most photographed creation of glass and wood.

What's this? The press was going to be allowed to enter those doors themselves, to furtively walk through the arch where ministers had walked before them. A Photo Opportunity was about to occur.

The reporters were chomping at the bit to ask questions about free trade and other pressing issues. But when they arrived at the 'Photo Opportunity' the only thing they got to listen to was Premier Peterson talking about tea in Japan. The ministers all looked so important sitting there in the high-backed chairs, listening intently to every word coming out of their leader's mouth. Young and confident, Peterson presented the picture of the able politician, master of all he sees. Anyone picking up a copy of the Globe or Star would think they were discussing anything but Peterson's travelogue of Japan.

Two words from Peterson's assistant and the media are shuffled out through 'The Door' and told nothing else is going to happen publicly for about an hour.

Now there was a pile of stories to type up back at the office but I just couldn't leave, the whole process of getting a story was so fascinating.

By this time, the other reporters had learned where I was from and, certain I represented no real threat, decided to ignore me. It's competitive at the top, not just among politicians. Thank goodness for local photographer Bruce Turner from Donald who recognized a lost sheep when he saw one. Soon we were swapping old reporting stories with two cameramen from the CBC. One of them knew the townhouse where I used to live in downtown Toronto because he had shot footage of a suicide that had taken place there one weekend when I was in Lindsay.

Soon, a rumour was making its way through the crowd Peterson was going to answer questions by 'The Door'. These reporters were smart though, they wanted to get Peterson and International Trade Minister James Kelleher together.

It was no doing however. With the television cameras crowding the Door, and the print guys (there was just one other woman besides myself) asking them to back off a little so they could all get in, the scrum began when the Important Person came through the door. Once their 10-second pat answers were recorded for posterity, they scurried out to the waiting cars. Of course, there had to be footage of "Minister's car leaves PineStone Inn". Then another Important Person came through The Door and it all began again.

I guess the scrum is a necessary evil and it's easy to be a conscientious objector when I'm standing on the outside. To me these guys just looked silly.

But you've got to understand the nature of the beast. Politicians know two things, that the clips used on television are short so they have to keep their answers short and they need these television reports so they can show The People they are busy at work governing the province. And for the reporters, they're just waiting like piranhas for the slip up, the mistake that could the politician over the edge.

The two groups feed off each other for their livelihood and provide the life blood that keeps them going. It's too bad they couldn't be a bit more civilized though, allowing each other their differences as they treat other like humans. Reporters aren't the favourite family pet to be beckoned at will. Politicians aren't prize trophies to be hung on the wall with other fallen prey. Both groups have a job to do and should be allowed to do it in a respected manner.

Haliburton Highlights

Work has started on the new laundromat in Haliburton. The footings are in and the block laying will begin very soon. The laundromat will be owned and operated by Don Lloyd and will be located behind Kennedy Surplus.

Dave Nicholls told the Echo this week that he is moving to Newfoundland and will be playing hockey there this winter. He will be playing with a team in Senior "A" competition.

Harold Bannon phoned the other day and told us that he is worried that some duck hunters might shoot the Canada geese that have been staying on Head Lake near his home. He would like to put out a plea to the hunters not to shoot these 10 geese as they are providing a great deal of enjoyment to many people who come there to feed them.

The management of the Haliburton Minor Hockey Association informs us that OMHA tryouts will be on Monday, October 7, Wednesday October 9 and Thursday, October 10. House league and OMHA team practices will begin the week of October 14.

Visit to Magnetawan enjoyed by rock club

Dorset News

by Phyllis Briscoe

The days fade away and the delightful month of September will soon be but a memory. We have had some beautiful days and the scarlets, orange, bronze and yellow are appearing along our waysides and hillsides. Soon the blaze of colour will be seen everywhere and the forests will be adorned in their illustrious autumn attire.

A group of Dorset Rock Hounds went by minibus to visit and explore the Blue Star mine near Magnetawan, travelling the last two miles in a horse drawn vehicle over a rather rough road. The mine produces a green coloured formation called Amazonite which is a very lovely stone that can be used in lapidary work. The mine also has some Garnet deposits which the owner expects to have available next year. The group had a very enjoyable outing and came home with numerous pieces of Amazonite that they will be working with in lapidary class.

I should have my wrist slapped for omitting some of the September birthdays but we wish them many happy returns: belatedly: Andy MacKay on the 9th, Nancy MacDonald on the 18th, Carl Hammond on the 19th and our friend Walt Taylor on the 11th. Best wishes to all.

There will be a "Think Thin" group meeting at the home of Beverly Robinson on Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m. All serious weight losers are invited to join.

Some people are really lucky and the Bill Johnson family seem to be on a roll. On September 14 at the Highway 35 Cornfest Bill's wife won a paddle boat, complete with a canopy. Bill is a local real estate broker and June operates a ladies' dress shop. The couple have had winning tickets on two other draws this year.

Another item from the Lions Fish Derby on September 2: a beautifully decorated cake was raffled and it was won by Greta Bacher. The decoration was in the form of a lion. It was baked, decorated and donated by Eileen Barry and was a work of art. When Greta's daughter Caroline went to school the next day the cake went along and was admired and enjoyed by all of the school children. The club wishes to thank Eileen for her efforts in providing this money making attraction.

Intended for last week

The Dorset Social Club got off to a good start on September 11 with a pot luck dinner followed by a business meeting. There were 22 in attendance. Cards and shuffleboard were enjoyed for the remainder of the evening. If there are enough people interested in quilting a group meeting would be held, a design chosen and material purchased. Non members are very welcome to participate in this effort. When the quilt is finished the club would raffie it with the proceeds going to the Dorset Community Centre Building Fund. For further information call 766-2605 or 766-2237.

A community card party is being planned for October 30 at the Centre. More on that later.

A shopping trip to the Barrie Mall is being considered for November 14. Anyone wishing to do Christmas shopping at this time would be welcome. Call the above numbers if you're interested.

A bridal shower was held for Joanne Robinson on Friday, September 13 at the home of her mother, Bev Robinson. Joanne was married on June 27 to Willie Hatton, in McLean, Virginia. The shower was well attended with 25 present. The bride received many gifts.

Irene and Jack Clayton took a jaunt into the north country for a bit of a change of pace after a long, hard summer. All of the business people are relaxing since the surge of summer visitors has let up. We are always happy to see them come but feel the easing of tension when they all take off for their home territory.

We are happy to report that Mildred Park has returned home after a week's stay at Huntsville Hospital. We hope that her health will improve.

The Dorset Rock Hounds are planning a trip to the Magnetawan area on Friday to do some "prospecting" at one of the mines. It is hoped that some interesting pieces of rock will be found that can be fashioned into clocks, bookends, jewelry or what have you.

H.H. When cooking rice add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water. This keeps the grains separated and white.

Brenda Fearrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Fearrey of Haliburton, and Doug Anderson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Anderson of Dorset, were married September 7 at Lakeside Baptist Church in Haliburton. Best man was Rick Boyd and Maid of Honour was Laurie Thibadeau. A reception was held at Wig-A-Mog Inn. The couple are residing in Haliburton.

Women's group meeting funny and informative

By JEANNE SEARS

The September meeting of Minden Women's Institute was held at the Library Cultural Centre with Mrs. Lacey, president, in charge. After the usual opening all observed a moment of silence followed by 'Amazing Grace' to honour our deceased member, Mrs. Allan Taylor.

Three guests were made welcome and one later joined and Mrs. Grant of Blue Lake and Auburn Branch brought greetings. The Roll Call of a hat made from Kitchen items was amusing; those who had no hat paid a fine and judged the hats and 'Doris McCall' won a little gift for her creation.

There were 22 ladies present. Reports were read including Mrs. Kernohan telling of the Meat Matters course and the bake sale. Mrs. Moore sent her card report with Mrs. Coulter and she had sent 36 cards since mid-June. Collections for the card fund and pennies for friendship were taken. Correspondence was read. A donation of $25 is going towards the art scholarships awarded to public school children through the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts.

Euchre team places first

Kinmount Korner

by Millie Moss

It's good to hear that Thelma Saunders is now back at her home following a stay in hospital but I'm sorry to report that Jim Simpson Sr. as of last Sunday was a patient at Ross Memorial.

Grace and Russell Leakey, Janet and Fred Lindsay, all of Gananoque, visited for a few days over the fair week and at the home of Vi and Albert Crego. They visited our fair all three days and assured Vi they'd believe anything Albert tells them from now on because he had told them so much about our fair and they'd never truly paid much attention, but following this trip they thought it one of the better fall shows they've ever attended. On September 5 Vi and Al travelled to Gananoque and arrived back at their home on September 9. Welcome home folks.

Congratulations to two lucky ladies who shared on the $190 Coboconk Legion bingo jackpot last Thursday evening. They won on the 57th number. It was also the "caller", Marg Michel's birthday September 19. Everyone sang happy birthday to her and following this Marg cut and served everyone a piece of cake. Two lovely cakes had been brought in for the birthday lady. Many more are wished for you, Marg. By the way, the two jackpot winners were Jeanne Sears of Minden and Beryl Kipp of Norland.

The Kinmount Legion ladies auxiliary travelled to Lindsay, as three teams recently to participate in a euchre tournament. Team number two placed first with Captain Vi Crego, June Grozelle, Pearl Burns and Doreen Hill. Team number one with Captain Gladys Silver, Vivian Anderson, Dagmar Simpson and Ruth Menard took second place so these two teams now qualify for District on November 2 at Belleville.

Welcome home from England, Betty Lonsdale. Results of St. James euchre last Tuesday are: men's high, Kay Atkins; men's low, Joan Hyams; ladies' high, M. Williamson; ladies' low, Betty Lonsdale; most lone hands, Clara Watson. Bill Hughes is in hospital and I hope he's well soon. A belated happy birthday to Clyde Pardy on September 5. I hope you had a nice week off the store Clyde. A meeting of the Meals on Wheels executive will be held at the home of Joan and Ken Hyams on Wednesday, September 25 at 2:00 p.m. Reverend Bill Ranson stopped by our house one afternoon this past week and

I had a lovely visit with him. Sincere sympathy of the community goes out this week to the parents and the grandparents, Ron and Bonnie Chynoweth and all other family of two year old Justin who died last week following a fall from the balcony of his and his parents' Toronto apartment. Our thoughts and prayers are with you at this time. Funeral and interment was at Norland Cemetery on Saturday, September 21.

Our summer weather was late this year. Well folks, stay well and happy, read the Echo and give me a call at 488-2353.

Dance tickets available

Norland News

by Kelly Graham

Well, the tickets to the opening of the recreation centre are finally available. If you wish to purchase the tickets you may do so at the Norland Township office. On the agenda is a dinner and dance and of course some words from local dignitaries. Prices are as follows, six dollars for the dinner, three dollars if you are under twelve; five dollars for the dance. If you buy the combined dinner and dance ticket the price is only 10 dollars. Lots of people are expected out for the festivities so don't miss out on all the fun! (Not to mention the making of Norland history!) Congratulations to Michelle Angiers, of Norland, who won the jackpot, $150, at the Norland bingo last Monday, September 16.

On Friday, September 27 the Victoria-Haliburton Progressive Conservatives and Young Progressive Conservatives will be choosing their voting delegates for the November leadership convention. The voting will be done at the Lindsay Legion at 8 p.m.

On Thursday, September 19 while the public school enjoyed a day off for the Lindsay Exhibition their teachers attended workshops, dealing with storytelling and speech, in the Lindsay area. The local senior citizens euchre and bridge scores from last week were as follows: ladies - Alva Hannivan (first, euchre), Muriel Hodgson (second), Laura Irvine (consolation), Alice Don (lone hands). In men's euchre the winners were Jean Barkwell (first), Doug Taylor (second), Stan Stewart (consolation), Jean Barkwell (lone hands). In bridge the skilled players were Ed Holland (first), Harry Keys (second), and Marra Clark (consolation). That's all for this week. Please remember if you have an item you'd like to see published feel free to call 454-3707.

About 60 people enjoyed a spaghetti supper.

On Sunday, September 15 a handsome baby boy was born to Michele and Mark Smith at the Bancroft hospital. The baby weighed 7 lb. 7 oz. and will be named Steven Jonathan. Alfalfa crop hints Ag. Report

Fall harvest of alfalfa
There have been a number of calls this past week about taking a third cut of alfalfa at this time of year.

The fields have good top growth - in some cases, more growth than was present for the first or second cut. The weather this week has been as tempting for hay making as anytime during the year.

Many farmers are having trouble resisting the temptation to go ahead and cut. Before taking such a drastic move, you should consider the following. During the month of September, the alfalfa plant is putting food reserves down into the root system. These reserves are used to overwinter the plant and to begin new growth the following spring. If the plant is cut during September, it will start to grow again and reserves are going to be depleted.

The top growth can act as a snow fence in the winter, trapping snow and providing a protective insulating blanket for the roots and crowns of the alfalfa. This helps to prevent winterkill. This top growth will also allow air into the crown area should an ice condition exist during the dormant season.

Unless the hay is desperately needed, do not harvest alfalfa in the fall. If hay is required, wait until after hard frosts early in October when the alfalfa has gone dormant, to harvest it.

October 1 is the deadline for farmers to enrol in the new three year Income Stabilization Program for corn, soybeans, white beans, winter wheat and barley.

Ontario farmers growing any of these five crops have the opportunity of participating in an income stabilization program for the crops harvested in 1985, 1986 and 1987. Details of the program and application forms have been mailed directly to participants in the previous three year stabilization program. New participants can obtain these forms from their County Agricultural Office. The deadline for submitting completed applications is October 1 - applications must be postmarked by that date to be acceptable.

Some fine new reading can be found at your library following the book exchange. If you enjoy a good biography you might try "Looking for Trouble" by Peter Worthington, who has written an account of his days as a roving reporter when he encountered many dangerous adventures while on assignment in troubled parts of the world. He has a light touch as he presents an interesting analysis of some of the key figures involved.

Extensive renovations to the Wilberforce baseball diamond are taking place. Interest has been building through the year for this great outdoor sport and we now have slow pitch ball drawing the crowds. The back stop is being moved forward, new seating was added earlier in the year. When finished this baseball field will be one of the best in the county.

Mutual Aid gather support

Gooderham News

by Mary Hadley

The Friendship Circle met at the home of Gladys Hunter last Tuesday evening. Eleven ladies were present and spent a pleasant evening chatting with each other. The hostess served a dessert to tempt the taste buds.

Merle and Ann Pickens of Timmins spent a few days last week with Merle's mother, Mrs. Mae Pickens and other relatives here.

Our local fire department hosted the Mutual Aid meeting recently. The attendance was gratifying with 57 present. These included members of the fire departments from Stanhope, Minden, Dysart, Monmouth and Bicraft. The guest speaker was Roger Sauve who spoke about the new fire extinguishers.

Last Tuesday evening 15 bridge players met at the school. Fred Vanderland did himself proud, coming first with over 6000 points while Ruth McLean, with 4890, came second.

We welcome to our community Mr. and Mrs. Hosak who recently moved into the home formerly owned by Brian Madill. Brian and Darlene have moved to Haliburton.

Two anniversaries were celebrated last week. Vivian and Tommy Dovell had an old friend, Thomas Nesbitt, of Hiawatha, as well as others, call last Wednesday on the occasion of their 61st wedding anniversary. Walter Reil was given a family party last Sunday, it being his 65th birthday. Best wishes for future happiness.

An exchange of books took place recently at the Glamorgan Library. Here you will find an excellent selection of new fiction in every category - books to suit every taste.

Among the adult non-fiction were the following: "Boomtime" by Jas. Grey - the story of the people who settled the Canadian prairies; "Dr. Wild Life" by Rory Foster - the crusade of a northwoods veterinarian; "Garden Construction" - creative ideas for decks, patios, walks and paths and fences, with construction techniques for building with wood, brick, stone and concrete; "Clay" - a book on hand-formed and wheel-thrown pottery, firing, decorating and glazing; "The Complete Guide to Shotguns - Automatic and Repeating" - professional advice on the choice of weapons for target shooting and hunting.

There is also an excellent selection of books by R.D. Lawrence which includes: "Birds", "Mammals", "Maple Syrup", "Canada's National Parks", "Where the Water Lilies Grow", and "The North Runner". Mr. Lawrence, a well-known Canadian author, has contributed some interesting articles to the Echo recently. He has been a local resident for the last couple of years.

Army and Jean Goff and their son, Peter, recently drove to Fiesherston, where Mr. Goff presented an 18th Century lap desk to the South Grey Historical Museum. The lap desk was once owned by Governor Simcoe and was handed down to Mrs. Margaret (Frencham) Armstrong, who was Mr. Goff's great grandmother. The desk top was inlaid with various types of wood indigenous to Ontario. It is still in good condition and is an example of portability ahead of its time.

Dianne (Madill) Johnson attended school at the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay for nine months. On May 28 she graduated with her R.N.A. In June she went to Don Mills to write an exam.

Seniors head to Kirkfield Hunt camp holds meeting

Senior League

by Bert Harrison at Hyland Crest

Dear readers: another week has passed and gone since we penned a line to you. I guess we better get busy and see what we can do. We watched movies over the weekend to keep us entertained. It's good to have the staff back with us Monday again.

Edna Cowan left on Saturday for a two week holiday with her daughter in Mississauga way. Our sympathy we would like to convey to the family and relatives of Lilly Hogg's sister-in-law, Jean Taylor, who recently passed away.

I'm sorry to have missed Chapel service Sunday night but we had company and to leave them wouldn't seem just right. I see our girls have a quilt set up in the craft room again to keep the quilters busy buy I won't mention any names. Linda showed us movies Monday night which were really good to see - "Hand Crafts of Nova Scotia", "Blue Birds of Happiness" and "Close Harmony".

I'm moving from room 103 to 105; two ladies are moving into 103; so much is happening in this place we hardly know where to begin.

Tuesday morning Evelyn Coleman conducted a service and brought a very impressive message. Thank you for coming.

Tuesday noon Doris said if you kids will promise not to kick up a fuss we will take you for a ride on the Hyland Crest bus, so we piled in (how many I didn't count the faces); Linda came along to keep us in our places. Harry and Jean Cowan came along, Jean to look after her mother, Mrs. Gilbank, and Harry is a great help on these bus trips. He brought along a basket of grapes for which we gave him thanks. It was a pleasant drive down through Kirkfield way. We got lost it seems, but Doris brought us safely back and we were treated to ice cream. We had a pleasant afternoon; it all seemed like a dream. We played them some harmonica tunes. We thank our girls and volunteers.

Tuesday evening our musicians came - Gordon, Mer- van, Murray and Shirley. Gordon had an appointment elsewhere so he left early. They entertained us royally with music and with song. We hope they will come back to us before too long.

The Anglican ladies from Kinmount came Thursday afternoon and brought and served lunch. Then Ken Hyams played some good old tunes for a sing-song which was really fine. Thank you for coming and giving of your time.

No bingo callers were on hand Thursday night and we just don't know when it might start up again. Doris read to us from 3:30 until 5:00 again to keep us entertained and by the way Dale Aransey came to call on Teddy Carr just the other day.

Visitors bid farewell

By GERALD IRISH

The Wednesday night dart group hosted a steak barbecue on Tuesday night, September 17 to say farewell to Peter and Wenda Wilson from England. The British couple left for home last Wednesday. It is always difficult to say goodbye to dear friends but Peter and Wenda return to England with our love and best wishes.

The beef draw was held at the dance on Saturday night. "Cimmeron" provided the music for dancing.

G. Hore and G. Wolsley of Haliburton each won a hind quarter of beef.

K. Barber of Tory Hill and Betty Dionne of Minden each won a front quarter of beef.

as we have done many times before, Harold Hogg made the highest score.

I don't think I have ever mentioned Mike Elder's name before. He is a good man, always willing to come and help any way he can. We watched a very interesting movie Friday afternoon. We have watched many movies and viewed many shows, but this one was the best: "Where the Red Fern Grows".

Winners of 25 pound parcels of beef were David Hebert of Scarborough, Nelson Dionne of Minden, Jean Cooper, of Surrey, B.C. and Wes Jeandron of Toronto. Congratulations to all the winners.

I had a very nice visit with Jerry Weymark of the Addiction Research Council. Jerry's words of praise and encouragement for Branch 129's D.A.D. programme were indeed welcome.

This Thursday night is Army Cadets enrolment night, 8 p.m. in the Legion. Please see the ad about this in this week's paper.

Carnarvon News

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late Elwood Johnson who died suddenly last week. The funeral was held on Saturday, September 14. The Johnsons were one time residents of our community.

Spending the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fletcher Sr., were Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Fletcher and baby of Toronto.

Members of the Buck Ridge hunt club held their annual meeting over the weekend at their hunt camp. Mr. and Mrs. Mark Fennell of Toronto spent the weekend with the Ron Fennells and Jack Gregorys.

Our best wishes to Mrs. Allan Thomas who is a patient in Civic Hospital in Peterborough following surgery.

Mrs. Velda Harrison spent last week in Toronto visiting with relatives. While there she also attended a wedding.

Spending time with parents this past weekend were Tom Harrison of Toronto, Ken McKay and son Michael of Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Harrison of Oshawa. Mr. and Mrs. Stan Archer spent the week in Toronto with Mrs. Martin Davies.

This week

It was a shock to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Howard Walker who has lived in our area since coming here as a war bride from the first World War. She was admired and respected by all who came into contact with her. The warmth and kindness of this gentle lady with the soft Scottish lilt will be missed.

Congratulations to our good neighbours, Jack and Hazel Gregory, who celebrated 57 years of marriage on Thursday, September 19. Spending a few days with them are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gregory of Ottawa. Jack will be going into St. Joseph's Hospital on Monday where he will undergo cataract surgery. Our very best wishes go with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Max McKay spent a couple of days last week with Mildred and Stan Archer at their cottage on Redstone Lake.

Mrs. Bill Chambers is away in Ottawa with her daughter and family awaiting a new grandchild.

It was a delightful surprise to meet Dorothy Barker of San Diego, California again. Dorothy, the former Mrs. Dick Thomson, lived among us for many years and taught school here. She was a guest of Mrs. Estelle Ralph.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Russell were on a camper trip in the North Bay area. They were accompanied by Vernon Rivers.
